

GET READY TO WORK

a social competency program for transitioning young adults

services format includes

- mini-groups (up to five participants)
  - ten 2-hour classes
- or individual instruction
  - 1-hour sessions as needed

what you'll learn

The Get Ready to Work program teaches young adults on the Spectrum the social competencies needed to get and keep jobs as they transition from high school and college to adulthood. Every year approximately 50,000 of youth in transition are ready to get a job and gain the self-esteem that comes from being part of the workforce. Get Ready to Work covers core work skills that align with employability skill benchmarks developed by state job agencies.

learn more or schedule a free half-hour initial consultation:
Melva Radtke, Executive Director of Spectrum Connections

Spectrum Connections
building self-advocacy and job readiness skills for young adults on the spectrum

651-269-5002

spectrum-connections.org

info@spectrum-connections.org